BUILDING OUR FUTURE

Transport for NSW

New Line Road between Castle Hill Road, West Pennant Hills and Old Northern Road, Dural

Have your say | July 2021

The Australian and NSW Governments are investing $20 million to investigate improvements on New Line Road, focused on better traffic flow, safety and travel times for the growing population of Sydney's north west.

Each day over 30,000 road users travel along New Line Road between Dural and West Pennant Hills. Due to the number of vehicles using this road, motorists experience heavy congestion, slow travel times and long delays while travelling along New Line Road. The Australian and NSW Governments are investigating options to upgrade this road to ease congestion, improve safety and cater for future growth in the area.

We are looking for feedback on New Line Road between Old Northern Road and Boundary Road and the intersection of New Line Road and Castle Hill Road. Feedback would help us make improvements to New Line Road to better connect users to Boundary Road and Pennant Hills Road.

Your feedback will help us understand:

- how you travel along New Line Road
- what problems you experience when travelling on New Line Road
- what improvements we could make to New Line Road.

We're interested in hearing your feedback on anything related to New Line Road, including:

- congestion
- safety
- active transport options in the area (pedestrian and cyclists)
- public transport
- intersection improvements.

What happens next?

While we are investigating options to upgrade New Line Road, the project is in the very early planning stages.

After the consultation closes, we will carefully review all feedback received. Your feedback will help inform a Business Case and plan any future projects on New Line Road.

We will keep the community informed as the project progresses and will consult the community again at an appropriate time in the project cycle.

Did you know? Congestion costs Sydney around $6 billion each year. By 2031, Sydney is forecast to be home to an extra 1.3 million people. This will put extra pressure on the existing road network due to increased demand from motorists, public transport and freight.
